THE CITY OF PRISHTINA

Prishtina is the capital and largest city of Kosovo. It is the administrative center of the homonymous municipality and district. The city has a majority Albanian population, alongside other smaller communities. With a municipal population of 204,721 inhabitants (2016), Prishtina is the second-largest city in the world with predominantly Albanian-speaking population (after Tirana in Albania). Geographically, it is located in the north-eastern part of Kosovo close to the Goljak mountains. The city is situated some 250 kilometers north-east of Tirana, 90 kilometers north of Skopje, 520 kilometers south of Belgrade and 300 kilometers east of Podgorica. Prishtina was home to several Illyrian and Roman people at the classical times. King Bardyllis brought various tribes together in the area of Prishtina in the 4th century BC, establishing the Dardanian Kingdom. The heritage of the classical era is still evident in the city, represented by ancient city of Ulpiana, that was considered one of the most important Roman cities in the Balkan peninsula. When the Ottomans conquered the Balkan peninsula, Prishtina was an important mining and trading center due to its strategic position near the rich mining town of Novo Brdo. Tolerance and coexistence of religion and culture has been part of the society for centuries.

Prishtina, the modern capital city, is situated in a magnificent setting. The contrast between urban metropolis and its long history makes Kosovo an attractive visiting destination. Prishtina is the center of cultural and artistic development in Kosovo.

Prishtina has its International Airport which is located 15km in south-west of the city. Having a modern terminal is the reason for handling over a million passengers per year and to be considered as the most frequented airport in the region.

Prishtina's transport and infrastructure forms the hub of road, rail and air networks in Kosovo.

Sports and education play a significant role in the dazzling city. Prishtina is the largest high education center of Kosovo, meaning that thousands of students from all over Kosovo live and study there.

The capital city, Prishtina is the heart of Kosovo due to its central location and its importance in finance, commerce, media, entertainment, arts, international trade, education, service, research and healthcare. Almost all domestic and foreign companies, media and scientific institutions have headquarters in the city.
